Getting an assembler means you won't have to figure out instructions yourself or ask friends or family for help. Since Airtasker lets you view customer ratings and reviews, you can hire a Tasker without worrying about their credentials or experience. And since you get to set the budget and pick the best offer, you're sure to get the most out of every cent. No, you won't need to provide your own tools or equipment for your Tasker. Usually, they'll bring their toolbox when doing an assembly job. Of course, if you already have your own equipment or would rather have the Tasker use your tools, you can ask them to do so. Simply specify this in your task post. Just make sure that you have all the tools needed to set up your particular brand/model of inversion table! This would depend on your Tasker as well as the type of inversion table you have. For example, a Teeter inversion table assembly takes only around 30 minutes, since they arrive pre-assembled. Stamina and Ironman inversion table assembly may take longer, due to the number of parts. If you'd like potential Taskers to give an estimate of the assembly time, you can specify this request in your task post. No, you won't need to provide your own tools or equipment for your Tasker. Airtasker also offers other assembly and removal services to suit your active lifestyle. These include fitness equipment removal, home gym assembly, exercise bike assembly, and basketball hoop assembly. Airtasker's inversion table assembly services typically cover the complete assembly process for various brands of inversion tables. Our reliable assemblers will also bring their tools and equipment, so you don't need to worry about providing a toolbox for them. While these inclusions may vary from Tasker to Tasker, here's what to expect when you book an inversion table assembly service on Airtasker: Preparing the parts of your inversion table just like any other assembly job, setting up your inversion table starts with preparing the parts. Your Tasker will make sure that the parts are complete and undamaged. No one wants to be halfway through the assembly process only to find out that a washer is missing! Your Tasker will also review the inversion table assembly instructions before getting started. Assembling the body or frame Most instruction manuals will ask the assembler to start with the body. This consists of front and rear frames. Once these are set up, the arms of the frame will be attached. Other parts like the bed, straps, and linkages will follow. Remember: this process may vary depending on the type of inversion table you own. Adjusting the settings Inversion tables have three settings: weight, height, and ankle. When the body of your inversion table is set up, your Tasker will start adjusting the weight setting. It is clipped according to your weight/the weight of the user. The height setting is usually determined by the height of the user plus 1 inch. For a more accurate measurement, take off your shoes before clipping the height setting. Next up is the ankle setting. When adjusting this component, make sure that you are comfortable. Remember, you'll be on this table for extended periods! Feel free to ask your Tasker or consult the manual if you have any questions about any of the settings. Adjusting the ankle lock Some inversion tables have an additional setting called an ankle lock. If your table is one of these, your Tasker will ask you to adjust this setting as well. While adjusting the ankle lock, think about whether you plan to wear shoes or socks when using the inversion table. You must be secure yet comfortable when using the equipment. The purpose of the ankle lock is to support your ankles and keep you from falling off the table. Make sure that you are very comfortable and confident with this setting. Inspecting the inversion table Once all the settings are finalised, the Tasker will inspect it thoroughly. Feel free to check on each part as well. Make sure that each piece is screwed on correctly and that the table is on a safe, stable surface. You can also ask your Tasker for tips on taking care of the inversion table.
